

We earn from Google AdSense through billboards, every job post has billboards. More unique applicants who can see your job posts generate an earning from Google AdSense. It depends on the range on how many unique applicants can see your job posts. More viewers means more income from Google. To generate more viewers, more shares in social media are needed which will help you, but you also need to do social media sharing. The large circles below are your billboards generated by Google. The share button encircled is how you share your job posts. Everytime you share, 1 point is added to your account. These points are deducted every time you make a job post on our site. We deduct 5 points for every job post. No worries on this deduction because you will be sharing your job posts daily to get more applicants.

Google offers us advertisements on our website, which is similar to billboards you can see during your travel on the road or commercials in between your favorite TV shows. The encircled ones are similar. On every job post, we have 5 billboards, two of them are from your job posts as encircled. The advantage of this is, your agency or you are doing the same job or tasks but you are earning extra as well. It might be little for a while, but it can get bigger from time to time. Initially it can be bigger than an interest on your savings or it can be as large as 20k per month or more, but still, you are earning on the same job you are doing, which is recruiting and you will have a helping hand to market your vacancies. More viewers of your job posts means more income from google. You may want your applicants to apply using the website so that they can always view the website and all those billboards to be generated.
